

I was very surprised by the first 'International Mobile Surcharge' on my phone bill. It was almost a 100% tax on the calls we had made. When we purchased the cell phone in Europe, one of the sales claims was that incoming calls were 'free'. Now we see that this was not the case. We in America are subsidizing a major portion of the mobile phone traffic overseas. I do not have free incoming minutes on MY cell phone in the US. I wonder if callers from Europe are surcharged for calls to cell phones here, or if they would like it.
